Critical Orthodoxies: (Re)Imagining Scholarship for a Brave New World

CONTENTS

Issue Introduction: NOMMO Scholars Collective and the Tradition of Critical Scholarship
Richard D. Benson II

Did COVID-19 Make Me an Afro-Pessimist? A Conversation in Three Parts
Chamara Jewel Kwakye and Jessica Millward

In the Wake: Black Girl Lessons on Collective Care
Aja Reynolds

Don’t Be a Slave to Your Discipline: Why an Afrocentric Methodology to Advance Humanizing Research on People of the African Diaspora
Ifetayo M. Flannery

Toward a Bad Bitches’ Pedagogy
Khalilah Ali

‘Part Typewriter, Part Divination’: Preserving the Papers of the Campaign to Bring Mumia Home through the Activist Studio West (Black) Digital Archive
Jessica Millward, Tiffany Willoughby-Herard, LaShonda Carter, and Krystal Tribbett

Extracting Life-giving Strength from my Roots: An Endarkened Feminist (Auto)Nkwaethnography of Navigating Tenure as a Black Woman in the White Academy
Ayana Allen-Handy

Review: Black, Brown, and Bruised: How Racialized STEM Education Stifles Innovation
Olanipekun Laosebikan

DOI: 10.13169/jinte.5.1.0000